

To students and faculty members

President
Josai International University

Response to J-Alert

In the unlikely event of a missile launch against Japan, or one that might affect Japan, emergency information will be transmitted from the national J-Alert system in the form of an early warning message to your mobile phone (similar to those received for earthquakes). At such time proceed calmly and follow any advice or instructions issued through television, radio, or other official media.

- what to do in case of missile attack against Japan.pdf