NEW Faculty of Health Sciences Opening in April 2026

Faculty of International Humanities
Department of
Inter-Cultural Studies

In the Department of Inter-Cultural Studies, students learn about Japanese language, culture, and society, as well as about worldwide cultures from a variety of perspectives. The International Culture Course broadens students' potential through diverse learning and specialized studies, while the Korean Language Course cultivates practical social skills through studies and collaborative work related to Korea.

Faculty of International Humanities
Department of
International Exchange Studies

Students in the Department of International Exchange Studies engage in wide-ranging learning to enhance their global competence, focusing on language and communication skills as well as their ability to understand different cultures. In a global environment rich in diversity, students will gain experience in international exchange right on campus and build a foundation for becoming future international leaders.

Faculty of Tourism
Department of Tourism

The Department of Tourism offers practical education combining "Tourism and Community Design" that aims at achieving regional revitalization, "Tourism Media" that conducts multifaceted information dissemination, and "Tourism Business" that seeks sustainable development for society. Located at our Chiba Togane Campus, near local tourist destinations and Narita Airport, our goal is to develop professionals who can create new value in the field of tourism.

Faculty of Management and Information Sciences
Department of
Management Sciences

Students of the Department of Management Sciences study accounting, business, and information in the heart of Japan at the Tokyo Kioicho Campus. There is also the opportunity to learn about business, sports, and public affairs in a spacious and richly international environment at the Chiba Togane Campus. Following graduation, students have advanced their careers in diverse work environments, such as sports and IT companies.

Faculty of Media Studies
Department of Media and Communications

Students of the Department of Media and Communications take a multifaceted, comprehensive, and practical approach to the study of media, technology, and entertainment. The Department not only seeks to help students acquire expertise and skills involving media, but also develop capabilities for thought and expression so that they can play active and creative roles within society.

Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences
Department of
Clinical Pharmacy

The Department of Clinical Pharmacy offers various courses in areas including regional cooperation in a super-aging society, international skills to respond to increases in foreign visitors to Japan, and professional collaboration to support patient-centered medical care. The department aims to develop pharmacists who can identify diverse issues in an ever-changing society and solve them flexibly.

Faculty of Health Sciences
Department of Social Work Studies

Students in the Department of Social Work Studies can seek national qualifications through professional studies in welfare, childcare, and nursing care. The Department also helps students develop their practical skills and capabilities so that they can make active contributions to local communities. This is achieved through a combination of practical classes and inter-departmental education.

Faculty of Health Sciences
Physical Therapy

Students of the Department of Physical Therapy aim for careers as physical therapists in a variety of fields including health, medical care, welfare, and sports. Making full use of the latest medical technologies, students acquire skills grounded in science. The Department also offers opportunities to deepen learning through practice and collaboration with the local community.

Faculty of Health Sciences
Department of Nursing

The Department of Nursing offers the opportunity to obtain dual licenses in nursing, midwifery, public health nursing, or nursing education. The Department seeks to produce nursing professionals who can serve both in Japan and internationally as leaders in interdisciplinary research and educational environments. Substantial overseas training and scholarship programs are available.
