

A Survey of “interrogation marks” in the Major Manuscripts of Plato’s *Republic*¹

Akitsugu Taki

In the list below, as in my previous surveys,² I record by the preceding word and its reference the mark newly invented in the ninth century, a one-stroke twist under the established vertically two-dot mark for a change of speaker or under a single dot clause-end mark, and I add selected grammatical characteristics in the clause and also in the context. The reference begins each entry, followed by (1) abbreviations for the grammatical characteristics in round brackets, (2) the corresponding description of the clause and context in Greek, (3) the codices in which the mark appears, and (4) the graphical characteristics of the mark there. Different readings in the manuscripts are, if necessary, recorded after each Codex register in round brackets.

The manuscripts I examined for each book of the Republic are listed in the round bracket following the book number.

Sigla

A : codex Parisinus graecus 1807, saec. IX

T : codex Venetus app. cl. 4. I (T₁ (I 327a–III 389d) saec. X; T₂ (III 389d– X 621d) saec. XV)

D : codex Venetus 185, saec. XII (–X 600a8 (fol. 342v))

B : codex Vaticanus 226, saec. XII

F : codex Vindobonensis suppl. gr. 39, saec. XIV

W : codex Vindobonensis suppl. gr. 7 (W₁, saec XI; W₂, saec. XIV)

M : codex Malatestianus plut. D XXVIII 4, (M₁, M₂ saec. XV; VI 519e2–VII 516d4 $\tau\alpha\bar{\nu}\tau\alpha\ddot{\alpha}$... $\tau\mu\omega\mu\acute{e}vou\varsigma$ $\tau\varepsilon$ mutil.)

P : codex Scorialensis P, 1, 1 (1462 CE)

¹ This work is a revised version of the circular attached to my paper entitled, ‘The Origin of Interrogation Marks in the Medieval Manuscripts of Plato’s Republic and Its Significance in the Tradition of Plato’s Dialogues’, read at the International Plato Society Tokyo Conference, Tuesday, August 3, 2010. For this circular, I observed again part of the Republic I in cod. Parisinus graecus 1807 and slightly revised my previous description in ‘A Survey on the Interrogation Marks in Plato’s Byzantine Manuscript, Parisinus graecus 1807, fol. 1^r col. 1 – fol. 14^r col. 1’ (title and text in Japanese), Bulletin, Faculty of Humanities, Josai International University, 16-2 (2008), 73–104.

² ‘A Survey of the “interrogation marks” in Plato’s Socratic Dialogues (the Gorgias, Meno, Hippias Major, Hippias Minor, Ion, Republic I) in Vindobonensis suppl. gr. 39 (Codex F) in Comparison with Those in His Other Major Manuscripts’ Material Culture Studies, Josai International University [=MCSJIU], 6 (2009), 1–21 (the description of the Republic I is based on the 2008 survey cited at n. 1); ‘A Survey of the “interrogation marks” in the Major Manuscripts of the Platonic Alcibiades I’ MCSJIU, 7 (2010), 1–10.

Reference is made according to the pagination and section in Stephanus' edition (1578) and to the line in Slings' edition (Platonis Respublica, Oxford, 2003).

Abbreviations for the grammatical characteristics of the sentence with the mark under discussion and of its context: I: interrogatives, i.e., interrogative pronoun, adverb, etc; IP: interrogative particles such as ἀροα, η̄, and μῶν; CP: continuative particles such as καί, δέ, ἀλλά, and οὖν, which mostly refer to the previous question or response; disj. : the disjunctive conjunction η̄, the proposition after which often denies the preceding paired proposition; 1P: the finite verb in the first person singular: some explicit or implicit mark for the speaker's intention; 2P: the finite verb in the second person or any other sign mentioning the respondent's intention; 1PP: the finite verb in the first person plural: some explicit or implicit mark for the speaker and respondent's intention; N: negatives; Rq: request for response, such as τί δέ, εἰπέ μοι, πῶς λέγεις etc; el: ellipsis: an elliptical form of the previous question or response; oq: οὐκοῦν; ara: ἀροα; adv. kai: adverbial καί; gar: γάρ; h.e.: ως ἔσουκεν; eoik.: ἔσουκεν as matrix clause finite verb; ind. q.: indirect question; oimai: parenthetical οἴμαι; ou-allā: οὐ ... ἀλλά ...; pou: indefinite adverb που; depon: δήπου; isos: ἴσως; 0: grammatically unmarked.

Cases with interrogatives except those alternative in proposition are printed in bold type because they are exceptional.

Asterisks against a reference indicate that Slings does not place an interrogation mark at the last word of the sequence I cite. A single asterisk “*” indicates the difference in position from the interrogation mark in Slings' text; a double asterisk “” against a reference the difference in the semantical rule according to which to place an interrogation mark; a triple asterisk “” the difference in both.

Abbreviations for the graphical characteristics of the mark under discussion in Codices: the figure 3 subscript following a Codex register means “a three-stroke mark”, i.e., a two-dot mark for a change of speaker and a twist below it; the figure 2 likewise “a two-stroke mark”, i.e., a single dot and a twist below it but 3 dots simply “three vertical dots; l, m or r following the figures 2 or 3 each means where the twist is placed below the two-dot or one-dot component: l means “on the left-hand side, m “in the middle” and r “on the right-hand side”. l abreast or r abreast means that the twist is placed not under the two dots but abreast of the lower dot. The bracket { } encircling a Codex register means ut videtur.

プラトン『国家』主要写本に付されたる「疑問符」に関する調査

瀧 章 次

要 旨

本調査は、プラトン著作『国家』の、中世ビザンツ帝国において9世紀から15世紀にわたって作成された主要写本に付されている、従来「疑問符」と報告されてきた記号について、すなわち、紀元後1-3世紀のパピルス文書において既に確立されていた話者交代の記号、二点コロン、「:」の下方に付されたコンマ状記号「,」、または、基本線より高い位置の一点コロン、「・」の下方に付されたコンマ状記号、「,」の両記号について、その付された文の文法的特徴、コンマ状記号の下方空間における位置に関し、写本の複製を用いて調査、記録したものである。この調査によって、従来中世写本研究において報告してきた、「疑問符」は、疑問詞を伴う疑問文には付されることなく、肯定、否定を問う疑問文に主に付される傾向があるという特性が、再確認されたばかりでなく、プラトンの対話篇作品においては、近代校訂本では、終止符が付される、間接的な手段によって疑問の意図を表す文に付されることがあるという新たな事実が確認された。
